We have observed and identify the problems of the participants in the context of online education in times of COVID and challenges faced by the lower socio-economic strata due to reasons like non-availability of resources, poor internet connectivity, poor understanding, and distractions while classes leading to low attendance. We have discussed about students studying through different online media.

Observance on one year of National education policy

Report:

The launch of the National Education Policy 2020 marked remarkable progress in the area of education and learning. India has completed one year into the National Education Policy. The pandemic has slowed the progress of NEP. The NEP is essentially about learning through observation, listening, exploring, experimenting, and asking questions. All of these are hands-on experiences and these aspects are missing in the online learning. Ever since the announcement of the NEP, the government is focused on laying the foundation for its implementation. But, to fulfill the objectives of NEP, the government should bring in reforms at multiple levels.

On the first anniversary of the National Education Policy (NEP), the Centre decided to officially roll out some initiatives promised in the policy. This includes,

- The much-expected Academic Bank of Credit will be rolled out for students in over 290 top institutions from the current academic year 2021-22 onwards
- All institutions in the top 100 of the National Institutional Ranking Framework as well as those who have achieved an A grade under the National Assessment and Accreditation Council will be allowed to participate in the credit transfer system.

‘Say No to plastic’ campaign

29th March, 2022

The National Service Scheme (NSS) is an Indian Government sponsored flagship Programme for public service. This academic year NSS unit (I & II), Gangadharpur Mahavidyamandir conducted various activities in gondalpara.

Plastics have become a severe transboundary threat to natural ecosystems and human health, with studies predicting a twofold increase in the number of plastic debris (including micro and nano-sized plastics) by 2030. However, such predictions will likely be aggravated by the excessive use and consumption of single-use plastics (including personal protective equipment such as masks and gloves) due to COVID-19 pandemic. This review aimed to provide a comprehensive overview on the effects of COVID-19 on macroplastic pollution and its potential implications on the environment and human health considering short- and long-term scenarios; addressing the main challenges and discussing potential strategies to overcome them. It emphasizes that future measures, involved in an emergent health crisis or not, should reflect a balance between public health and environmental safety as they are both undoubtedly connected.

On 31st March,2022, NSS units of Gangadharpur Mahavidyamandir had conducted an Awareness about online education. COVID-19 has restricted the education of students on a global scale.

COVID-19 marks a black swan event in the history of the modern world which has disrupted normalcy. What we assumed and embraced as normal yesterday is no longer valid today. We have been faced with a situation for which we were neither prepared nor equipped. While most areas of the economy have been badly hit, education has stood its ground to some extent. We largely owe this to the online format of education that has enabled key role players to stay connected and keep the action going. Online mode has impacted people and activities around the globe.
